BARN OWL

FARMER'S HOLIDAY AND THE PENNY AUCTION

Farming in the Midwest has not always been peaceful. Many times, farmers and their communities have had to work together to protect their farms and their family's future. This was never so important as during the Great Depression of the 1930s.

In the 1930s over 200,000 farms across the Midwest were taken by banks through foreclosure. During World War I, farmers expanded their operations because of the high demand for food in Europe. Many borrowed money to buy extra land and equipment. When the war ended, demand for food dropped. Farmers struggled to pay back their debts. By 1929, the beginning of the Great Depression, farmers earned less money than what it cost to grow their crops. Some families could not afford fuel and burned corn in their stoves for heat. The countryside often smelled like popcorn.

The Farmer's Holiday Association started in Iowa in 1932, organized by Milo Reno, an earlier president of the Iowa Farmers Union. The Association wanted to stop farm foreclosures and push for farmer's rights. Their main tactic was a strike, which they called a "holiday." Farmers stopped sending produce, milk and livestock to market. They also picketed and blocked roads to stop goods from getting through. The largest strike lasted two months. Although the association did not win all its goals, it pushed the authorities to make changes to help farmers.

In another act of community defense, The Farmer's Holiday Association organized "penny auctions." These occurred across many parts of the Midwest, especially in Nebraska, Minnesota, Wisconsin and South Dakota. When a neighbor was losing their farm to a bank foreclosure, surrounding farmers appeared at the auction. Prospective buyers coming in from outside were either kept in their cars or forced to leave. Neighbors made up most of the crowd at the auction. Through cooperation and sometimes force, they kept the bids for land and equipment much lower than what it was worth, sometimes just for pennies. At the end, the farmer under foreclosure was able to buy back his property from his neighbors for a few dollars. His loan was cleared and he kept the farm.

As penny auctions continued, several midwestern state stopped farm foreclosures, at least temporarily. These actions did not create long term changes in farming, but they were a true American response to a moment when people felt ignored and endangered. At a moment when farming communities were threatened, and government and business powers had no interest in farmer's needs, a group stepped up to make known to the country that this would not be tolerated.

IT'S HARD to talk about being abused. Sometimes it's even harder to know if what you are experiencing is abuse. But you don't have to face this alone. There are safe places where you can begin to sort it all out with complete confidentiality. AND GOD SAYS . . .

For although they knew God, they neither glorified him as God nor gave thanks to him, but their thinking became futile and their foolish hearts were darkened. (Italics mine, Romans 1:21-23).

I have become convinced that the sin of omission has even greater consequences than the sins of commission. According to the context of these verse, all the sins of commission come as a result of this sin of omission. This is not out of ignorance, but of neglect, of our spiritual awareness being dulled by the “hollow and deceptive philosophy, which depends on human tradition and the elemental spiritual forces of this world rather than on Christ” (Colossians 2:8). Although we know God and put our faith in him, we neglect to give him credit for his grace extended to us in the circumstances of our life. Instead, we give credit to “luck, or “the force” or “fate” or whatever. And for this, we pay a heavy price. Just read the rest of the text.

The definition of “luck” in Wikipedia is telling. I quote, “Luck is a phenomenon or belief that humans may associate with experiencing improbable events, especially improbably positive or negative events. Philosophical naturalism, eschewing any supernatural explanations.” (Italics mine). According to this definition, when we attribute something to luck we are “neither [glorifying] him as God nor [giving] thanks to him” and therefore committing the sin of omission.

And what is the price? Their thinking becomes futile for one thing. “Futile” carries the idea of emptiness or profitlessness. It also carries with it the idea of being morally corrupt. It depicts a life that works very hard at trying to find meaning, happiness, fulness and true love apart from God, and coming up empty.

But there are still more consequences and they are even more dire. Their hearts are darkened so that they behave foolishly. The word for foolish is the word we get our word “moron” from. It is a person who does not have a clue how to find true happiness and fulfillment. That’s why people do drugs, participate in sinful sexual relationships, and all kinds of ungodly behavior.

And this all starts with the sin of omission, neglecting to truly give God thanks and glorifying him in our lives. Only when we recognize God’s involvement in our life does life truly make sense.

Weston, the son of Nick and Andrea Kyser, was recently diagnosed at six months of age with Krabbe Disease, a rare and terminal genetic disorder that affects the brain. This life-changing diagnosis brings not only an emotional toll for all who know and love Weston, but also a significant financial burden for his family.

Weston's care will require specialized equipment, ongoing medications, and travel to see medical specialists. In addition, his parents will face lost income as they take time away from work to care for him.

THANK YOU FOR COMING TOGETHER TO SUPPORT WESTON AND THE KYSER FAMILY!
