BARN OWL

A GOOD CAPITALISM

A kid is out on the street and breaks a window.
No one saw him do it. No one told him "No". So, he did nothing wrong. Right? Nothing illegal?

After all, if you don't ask for permission, anything is possible.

After the government abuses of Watergate, congress passed the Inspector General Act of 1978. It created nonpartisan, independent offices in federal agencies that made sure those agencies followed the rules. Inspectors General (IG) are important watchdogs of the federal government. They look for waste, fraud and abuse. They save taxpayers tens of billions of dollars every year. In 2024 alone, Inspectors General saved taxpayers over $70 billion.

Days after taking office, President Trump fired 17 of the 26 appointed inspectors general. They were not replaced. According to the Partnership of Public Service, over 75% of presidentially appointed IG positions are now vacant. Trump's firings, along with other resignations and jobs that were already empty, created this gap.

One example of this loss can be seen in the Office of Professional Responsibility. This office is an internal watchdog in the Justice Department, Homeland Security agencies and other departments. It investigates employee misconduct. It also guards against lawyers who abuse their power, lie, act unethically, or break the rules that prosecutors must follow.

Sharad Swaney, who writes for the Substack site Sharad's Room, reported that investigative reports by Reuters showed nearly half the workers at the Office of Professional Responsibility left during Trump's second term. About 17 % of the Justice Department's Office of IG also left.

The Justice Department has enormous power over ordinary people. That kind of power needs to be watched and controlled. There must be people with the authority to review how that power is used. When the people who check government power lose staff, the people with power have more freedom to act without being checked.

Every investigator gone means fewer complaints can be investigated. IGs must check documents, emails, court filings, and interviews. As complaints increase, there are fewer staff who can investigate. Complaints pile up. Everything slows down. Loyalists chosen by the administration can also tell staff to avoid investigating complaints the government does not want examined.

The Republican majority in Congress could say "no", but they won't. Normal ways to legally say "no" are weakened or blocked. So, that means whatever happens becomes legal, right? NO.

Thank You

We'd like to share a deep and heartfelt thank you to our family, friends, and communities far and wide following the unexpected and heartbreaking passing of our son and brother, Adam Massman.

From the moment Adam was hurt to every moment following, we are incredibly grateful for the help we've received and we can never thank everyone adequately for the abundance of true kindness and love. The outpouring of tender support came in many forms: physical help, flowers, prayers, meals, our 'doers' getting things done, messages, cards, contributions to Adam's memorial, hugs, and so much more... everything is recognized and so greatly appreciated. Thank you everyone.

A special thank you goes to the Jensen-Modjeski Funeral Home for their guidance, attention to detail, and compassionate care for Adam and our family while standing by us during this time.

We are incredibly grateful to the Alma Center-Humbird-Merrillan School District for the extraordinary support, generosity, and the care you extended to our family during such an incredibly difficult time. Your willingness to provide space, resources, time, and flexibility - and to work with us so graciously - gave us comfort, strength, and peace when we needed it most. We are especially thankful for the many people who stepped forward, sharing their time, talents, and helping hands to make Adam's beautiful celebration of life possible. Your kindness, genuine care, and willingness to come alongside our family will never be forgotten.

Thank you Pastor Paul for sharing such a special message about Adam and for helping to bring the spirit of the Lord to be with us throughout our difficult days.

Please keep paying such love and kindness forward to help and support others who are going through their own struggles - and please remember to give yourself such grace and compassion as well.

As Adam's confirmation verse says and may we remember:
"For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believes in him shall not perish, but have everlasting life." John 3:16

AND GOD SAYS...

But the wisdom that comes from heaven is first of all pure; then peace-loving, considerate, submissive, full of mercy and good fruit, impartial and sincere. (James 3:17).

This verse lists attributes of godly wisdom in order of priority indicated by the phrase "first of all." Therefore all of the attributes of wisdom must be founded on truth, not on falsehoods. But I fear, in our modern culture that elevates personal freedom and feelings to a top priority, that we have sacrificed truth for the sake of our feelings. We are no longer talking about what is true, but how we feel about it. Even in modern TV shows and movies, huge decisions are based on "my gut tells me," or "follow your heart," (like they are final authority and will not mislead) rather than, "what do we know to be true," to base our decisions on.

But feelings are fickle, unstable, and more often than not, misleading. In fact. According to Galatians 5:17, feelings are many times contrary to godly wisdom. It say, "For the flesh [feelings] craves what is contrary to the Spirit, and the Spirit what is contrary to the flesh. They are opposed to each other" Therefore depending on your "gut" or your "heart" to lead you is dangerous at best.

The second thing to note about the verse quoted above, is that godly wisdom does not originate within us but it comes from outside of us. From God himself— an all-knowing and objective source. He is not swayed or confused by our emotional baggage or extenuating circumstances. He grants true wisdom based on the full and clear understanding of our total need while we have merely an incomplete and cloudy understanding of the real issues involved. Therefore a decision based on his truth is truly wise while basing a decision on our "gut" or "heart" is more than unwise, it is foolhardy and usually leads to greater problems as time goes by.

So how do we make decisions based on truth. God says, "The fear of the LORD is the beginning of knowledge [wisdom], but fools despise wisdom and instruction" (Proverbs 1:7). So we start with learning about God and honoring him by trusting him. That means studying his revelation to us (i.e. the Bible) and putting into practice the truth he reveals. This will ultimately leads us to his Son, Jesus, for he "is the way and the truth, and the life" (John 14:6). He is true wisdom.
