BARN OWL

NO ONE TO SAY NO

A kid is out on the street and breaks a window. No one saw him do it. No one told him “No”. So, he did nothing wrong. Right? Nothing illegal?
After all, if you don’t ask for permission, anything is possible.

After the government abuses of Watergate, congress passed the Inspector General Act of 1978. It created nonpartisan, independent offices in federal agencies that made sure those agencies followed the rules. Inspectors General (IG) are important watchdogs of the federal government. They look for waste, fraud and abuse. They save taxpayers tens of billions of dollars every year. In 2024 alone, Inspectors General saved taxpayers over $70 billion.

Days after taking office, President Trump fired 17 of the 26 appointed inspectors general. They were not replaced. According to the Partnership of Public Service, over 75% of presidentially appointed IG positions are now vacant. Trump’s firings, along with other resignations and jobs that were already empty, created this gap.

One example of this loss can be seen in the Office of Professional Responsibility. This office is an internal watchdog in the Justice Department, Homeland Security agencies and other departments. It investigates employee misconduct. It also guards against lawyers who abuse their power, lie, act unethically, or break the rules that prosecutors must follow.

Sharad Swaney, who writes for the Substack site Sharad’s Room, reported that investigative reports by Reuters showed nearly half the workers at the Office of Professional Responsibility left during Trump’s second term. About 17 % of the Justice Department’s Office of IG also left.

The Justice Department has enormous power over ordinary people. That kind of power needs to be watched and controlled. There must be people with the authority to review how that power is used. When the people who check government power lose staff, the people with power have more freedom to act without being checked.

Every investigator gone means fewer complaints can be investigated. IGs must check documents, emails, court filings, and interviews. As complaints increase, there are fewer staff who can investigate. Complaints pile up. Everything slows down. Loyalists chosen by the administration can also tell staff to avoid investigating complaints the government does not want examined.

The Republican majority in Congress could say “no”, but they won’t. Normal ways to legally say “no” are weakened or blocked. So, that means whatever happens becomes legal, right? NO.

AND GOD SAYS . . .

“But just as he who called you is holy, so be holy in all you do; for it is written: ‘Be holy, because I am holy.’”
(1 Peter 1:15-16)

The problem with this command is that it is impossible for any of us to accomplish. Romans 3:23, reveals “that all have sinned and fallen short of the glory [holiness] of God. Thus, we have all condemned ourselves as unworthy of God’s blessing and instead, deserve only His wrath. If this were the end of the story we would be in a hopeless mess, to say the least. But, praise God, it is not!

Though we have failed God and even turned our backs on Him, He has not forsaken us. He still loves us. And it is this truth that makes Christianity so different from all other faiths. Only the Christian God sent His son to die for us because He loves us so much. Furthermore, because Christ took our sins upon Himself and died in our place, He therefore is able to cover us with His own holiness, thereby satisfying the requirements of God that we “be holy as He is holy.” In doing so, Jesus Christ has reconciled us to God and giving us peace with God. And because we are brought into a right relationship to God, through Christ, we are restored to an open and intimate relationship with God, not only for today, but for all of eternity.

The only condition to receive the holiness of Christ is that we must “believe in our heart that God raised Him (Christ) from the dead, and confess Him as Lord” of our life (Romans 10:9-10). It is at this point, that we many times wrongly respond to this message in two ways. First, we tend to believe with a head knowledge rather than a heart commitment, and second, we want the salvation that Christ has to offer but without surrendering our lives to Him — we are unwilling to make Him Lord and Master of our lives. But complete surrender, making Christ Savior and Lord is the only way. The result is that many people are so close to the truth, yet miss it by a mile.

Those who genuinely put their faith in Jesus and make Him Lord of their lives will “prove their repentance by their deeds” (Acts 26:20). Friend, do you put your trust in Jesus? I hope so. If you do, is your faith demonstrated by your deeds? This is what reveals genuine faith.
